'If you don't have an effective control room – you don't have an effective business'.

Greg Prescott, State Manager of ASSURE Programs and Mark Holmes co-founder and Director of Circadian Australia will share their experiences and insights into the human impacts being caused by the SARS-CoV-2 virus and the spread of the CoViD-19 disease.

The ACRNA's second webinar focuses on the mental health impact of CoViD-19 on our control room workforce and will be of significant interest and value to our control room operators and to all those who lead and support our front line control room operators working rotating 24/7, 12-hour shifts in our challenging and rapidly changing world.

The webinar panel discussion features leaders in the world of sleep and fatigue risk management and mental health support programs who will share their knowledge and experience with our ACRNA Members and Guests.

Who should attend...

The webinars are designed for members, and for control room employees, guests and related personnel of corporate members.

Non-members are welcome to join the ACRNA to view the webinar series, and additionally gain access to other great control room resources and networking opportunities.

How to attend...

Registration is available on the ACRNA website at <https://www.acrna.org/webinars/>

This is the second in ACRNA's webinar series.

The producers have been impressed and sustained by the 56 participants in Webinar #1.

Greg and Mark have kindly given up their time to discuss and share their respective experiences and they deserve support from all members.

More webinars are in planning and the Membership & Marketing SubCommittee is developing an ongoing series.

Members who have something to say and share are encouraged to contribute – this is a growth initiative of the ACRNA and it will continue to develop as a valuable resource because you, the Members, are the ones who will build it. Contact webinars@acrna.org
